

3rd Annual REALPAC / Ryerson Canadian Commercial Real Estate Research Symposium

CALL FOR RESEARCH PRESENTATIONS

We are pleased to invite you to submit your academic or professional practice research paper for the 3rd Annual REALPAC Ryerson Canadian Commercial Real Estate Research Symposium.

The symposium is organized by REALPAC and the Real Estate Management Department at the Ted Rogers School of Management, Ryerson University, and will take place on Friday April 24th, 2020 at the Ted Rogers School of Management, Ryerson University in Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

Topics of Interest

We invite professional practice and academic papers that focus on:

- Risk and return relation to Canadian commercial real estate markets
- Canadian REITs, their management issues and their financial performance metrics
- Income producing real estate assets and their financial performance metrics
- Indexing and indexes of commercial real estate assets
- Spatial statistical models
- Policy issues that focus on domestic and/or international capital flows that target Canadian commercial real estate markets
- Housing issues from the viewpoint of Canadian commercial real estate
- Real estate technology and innovation, PropTech (e.g. Artificial Intelligence, Big Data, Blockchain)
- Sustainability in the Canadian context
- Other relevant topics to the Canadian commercial real estate industry

Goals & Objectives

The principal objective of the symposium is to bring together Canadian commercial real estate practitioners, academics and policy makers to share their Canadian research and propose and discuss solutions. International academics are also welcome. The symposium will be a valuable venue for the exchange of useful (new) ideas and knowledge and will be followed by a networking reception and dinner.

The goals of the symposium are to:

- Connect and build collaboration between the Canadian academic community, the Canadian commercial real estate industry and interested international academics and collaborators.
- Grow the body of Canadian academic real estate research and to give a place within Canada for Canadian researchers to collaborate, meet, communicate and share their research outcomes.
- Provide a forum to support Canadian academics including young scholars and graduate students.
- Provide a forum to enable collaboration between academic, private sector, government and NGO participants on real estate research topics of mutual interest.
